Generation 1

1. THOMAS<sup>1</sup> DONAHUE SR. was born about 1817 in Co. Tyrone, Ireland. He died on 18 Apr 1867 in Philadelphia, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania (Age: 50). He married Catherine DAILEY in 1833 in Ireland. She was born in 1808 in Ireland. She died on 23 Jan 1897 in Philadelphia, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania.

Notes for Thomas DONAHUE Sr.:

'd3 DONNCHADHA, 'd3 DONNCHAIDH-I-O Donochowe, O Donaghie, O Dunaghy, O'Donoghue, O'Donohue, Donaghoe, Donoghue, Donohoe, Donaghy, Donagh, Dunphy, Dunfy, Dumphy, &c.; 'descendant of Donnchadh' (brown-warrior, or strong-warrior, a very common Irish personal name). There are several distinct families of this name in Ireland, of which the following are the best known:-(1) 'd3 Donnchadha of Cashel, who are of the same stock as the MacCarthys and O'Callaghans, and derive their name and descent from Donnchadh, son of Ceallachan, King of Cashel. They were seated in Magh Feimhin, now the barony of Iffa and Offa, in the south-east of Co. Tipperary, and during the greater part of the 11th century were lords of Eoghanacht Caisil; but towards the close of that century, they were overshadowed by the growing power of the MacCarthys and disappeared from history. (2) 'd3 Donnchadha of Desmond, a branch of the Ui Eathach Mumhan and of the same stock as the O'Mahonys, who derive their descent from Eochaidh, son of Cas, son of Corc, King of Munster in the 5th century, and more immediately from Domhnall, the son of Dubhdabhoireann, King of Munster, who commanded, conjointly with Cian, ancestor of the O'Mahonys, the forces of Desmond at the battle of Clontarf. The descendants of Domhnall were at first surnamed 'd3 Domhnaill, but afterwards adopted the present surname of 'd3 Donnchadha, which they took from Donnchadh, his son. They were known by the clan-names of Cinel Laoghaire and Clann tSealbaigh. The original patrimony of the family lay in West Cork, but about the end of the 12th century or the beginning of the 13th, they were driven out by the MacCarthys and O'Mahonys, and settled in Kerry, where they became lords of all the country about Killarney, to which they gave the name of Eoghanacht Ui Dhonnchadha, anglicised Onaght O'Donoghue. They divided at an early period into two great branches, namely 'd3 Donnchadha of Loch Lein, the head of which was known as 'd3 Donnchadha M'f3r, or O'Donoghue More, and resided at Ross Castle, and 'd3 Donnchadha of Glenflesk, the head of which was designated 'd3 Donnchadha an Ghleanna, or O'Donoghue of the Glen. The estates of O'Donoghue More were confiscated in the reign of Elizabeth, and ultimately passed into the possession of the ancestors of the Earl of Kenmare, but O'Donoghue of the Glen retained considerable property down to modern times. The head of this branch is now known as The O'Donoghue. (3) 'd3 Donnchadha of Ossory who are of the same stock as the Fitzpatricks, and were anciently one of the ruling families of Ossory. Donnchadh 'd3 Donnchadha, the head of the family in the latter part of the 12th century, was the founder of Jerpoint Abbey. This family now anglicise the name Dunphy. (4) 'd3 Donnchadha of Meath, who were chiefs of Teallach Modharain, which, according to O'Donovan, was probably in the barony of South Moyfenrath, but nothing is known of their history. (5) 'd3 Donnchadha of Ui Maine, who are of the same stock as the O'Kellys, and were chiefs of Ui Cormaic, in the present Co. Galway. (6) 'd3 Donnchadha of Tíreragh, a branch of the Ui Fiachrach of the Moy. (7) 'd3 Donnchadha of Teallach Dhonnchadha, who are still numerous in Co. Cavan. This surname, under various anglicised forms, is now very common in all parts of Ireland

All municipalities in the County of Philadelphia were annexed into the City of Philadelphia by the Act of Consolidation in 1854. Before that date, the northern boundary of the City of Philadelphia was Vine Street and the southern boundary was South Street, with the two rivers marking the east and west boundaries.

At the time of the 1850 census, the Thomas "Donnahue" and his family lived in the "District of Penn." The Penn District, was a portion of the Penn Township which was north of the north boundary-line of Spring Garden between Delaware, Sixth Street and the Schuylkill River and between a line parallel with Hickory Lane (formerly Coates Street, now Fairmont Avenue), west of Sixth Street as far as Broad Street, and then due west to the Schuylkill, and along the same to a line parallel with, and at a distance of one hundred feet north of Susquehanna Avenue, and thence to the middle of the sixth Street. A Declaration of Intent was not ordered. Before 1906, the information on the form was limited to the name and the former sovereign. There is no way to determine which of several Thomas Donahues who filed declarations in Philadelphia is our ancestor. However, due to the date of filing, it more than likely was either the one filed on October 9, 1848 in the Quarters Sessions or on September 25, 1850 in the Court of Common Pleas.

DNA Test Results Show Family Trait of R1b1b2a1b5b (Shorthand: M222+) M222+ is also called the "Northwest Irish" haplogroup. Further tested as negative for the downstream DF85 SNP (DF85-).

In January 2007, Bernard E. Donahue, Jr., aka □Young Bernard□, great-great-grandson of Thomas Donahue, had his DNA analyzed as part of the work of the O□Donoghue Society (www.odonoghue.co.uk) and of the Br'e9ifne Project of the Donohoe Clan (www.donohoeclan.org).

As a direct male line descendant of his Irish immigrant great-great grandfather, a Y-DNA analysis would help identify the origin of the family in Ireland. The result revealed that this branch of the Donahues carries the DNA marker R1b1c7, as do all direct male descendants of Thomas Donahue, and that the family originates in the ancient Kingdom of Breifne in an area that today would be centered in the counties of Leitrim and Cavan.

One of the missions of The O□Donoghue Society is further the study of the history and origins of the O□Donohues. In so doing, it must content with the fact that there are 9 distinct O□Donoghue families in Ireland. These are:

- 1 ) E'f3ghanacht Raithlind of counties Cork and Kerry represented by The Royal Order of 'd3naghts 'd3 Donnchadha
- 2 ) E'f3ghanacht Caisil of County Tipperary
- 3 ) E'f3ghanacht Ninussa of County Clare
- 4 ) Osraighe of a territory known as Ossory comprising County Kilkenny and certain parts of counties Tipperary and Leix. Dunphy origins
- 5 ) U'ed D'fanchadha of counties Wicklow and Dublin
- 6 ) Teallach Modhar'e1in of counties Meath and Offaly
- 7 ) U'ed Cormaic of County Galway
- 8 ) U'ed Donnchadha of Breifne represented by The Donohoe Clan Society
- 9 ) U'ed Fiachrach of counties Mayo and Sligo

As indicated above, the U'ed Donnchadha of Breifne, the Donohoes of the ancient Kingdom of Breifne, have their own society, The Donohoe Clan Society. According to Joseph Donohoe, the governor of the society, our family's profile falls into the pattern of the R1b1c7 haplogroup (also known as the NW Irish haplogroup), and fits well with pattern of the Donohoe/Donahue/etc. Line A2 of the Mixed Breifne Surnames group in the Breifne Clans Project.

Joseph Donohoe further reports:

Belonging to the R1b1c7 haplogroup means that you do not belong to any of the Donohoe/O'Donoghue/Dunphy groups of southern or eastern Ireland. They do not belong to this haplogroup. You belong to some Donohoe/O'Donnchadha/MacDonnchadha group of western or northern Ireland. That is all that can be said at present with assurance.

The R1b1c7 haplogroup is being called the Northwest Irish (NWI) haplogroup at present, but on the basis of the data I have seen so far it would be more properly termed the Western Irish haplogroup. It was first noticed as being more prevalent in the northwest of Ireland as compared with eastern Ireland or Scotland, and as including many participants bearing surnames traditionally associated with descent from the Ui Neill (some have called it the Ui Neill haplogroup).

The Ui Neill, however, are traditionally Connachta and are said to have moved north from Connacht in the fifth century. I have found that many families associated with descent from the Ui Briuin and some from the Ui Fiachrach, both branches of the Connachta, also belong to this haplogroup. These branches remained in western Ireland. So it would be better to call this haplogroup the Connachta haplogroup rather than NW1.

However, R1b1c7 may date back to before the origin of the Connachta, so I still favor Western Irish as the designation for the present, although NW1 seems to be the established term at the moment.

Breifne (Breff-nee) at one time included a small part (a couple of parishes) of what is now Co. Sligo, but never went as far as what is now Co. Mayo. I know of no Donahues originating in Co. Mayo, but there was a prominent McDonogh (MacDonnchadha) family, a branch or subclan of the McDermotts, centered on Ballymote in Co. Sligo. As they traditionally descend from the Ui Briuin Ai they would likely belong to the R1b1c7 haplogroup and could be the origin of some Donahues, but I don't have any data to establish that. By analogy, the McDonaghy (MacDonnchadha) branch of the Maguires in Co. Fermanagh gave rise to a number of present-day Donohoe families in Co. Cavan (but they don't belong to the R1b1c7 haplogroup).

You could also belong to the medieval Donohoes of a part of Breifne that is now in Co. Cavan. Hopefully with the accumulation of data as time goes by the picture will become clearer.

Oral history has it that the members of the R1b1c7 haplogroup are descended from settlers who crossed into Ireland from the Iberian Peninsula some 9,000 year ago, as the glacial icepack was receding. Per oral history, all are linked to (but not necessarily all descended from) □Naill of the Nine Hostages□, High King of Ireland Ui Neill who live in the 4th Century and who settled Northwest Ireland and the western lowlands of Scotland. Moreover, legend has it that it was this High King Ui Neill who captured the young St. Patrick and first brought him to Ireland.

Wikipedia, the on-line encyclopedia, states that The Kingdom of Br'e9ifne (also Breffny, Brefnie, Brenny) was the traditional territory for an early Irish tribal group known as the U'ed Bri'fain Br'e9ifne. Breifne means as much as hilly in Irish and this part of Ireland is indeed quite hilly. The Br'e9ifne territory included the modern Ireland counties of Leitrim and a part of Cavan and at its height in the 12th century, when Tighern'e1n m'f3r 'd3 Ruairc was king of Br'e9ifne, it extended from Kells in County Meath to Drumcliffe in County Sligo. By about the 13th century the Br'e9ifne region had split into East Br'e9ifne and West Br'e9ifne, the 'd3 Ruairc kings (O'Rourke) maintaining lordship over West Br'e9ifne (mainly Co. Leitrim. The Kingdom of Br'e9ifne region was part of the kingdom of Connacht up until the time of Queen Elizabeth I. In that time it was shired into the modern counties Cavan and Leitrim, Leitrim remaining a part of the province of Connacht while Cavan became part of Ulster. The 'd3 Ruairc's were effectively lords of Breifne O'Rourke through the turbulent 16th century.

Philadelphia Anti-Catholic Riots of 1844

Thomas Donahue and Catherine Dailey were almost certainly in St. Michael's Parish at the time of the Anti-Catholic Riots of 1844. To learn more about these riots go to the History of St. Michael's Church: <http://home.catholicweb.com/saintmichael/index.cfm> and at Wikipedia: http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Philadelphia\_Nativist\_Riots

At the time of the famine, most immigrants came over on cargo ships, which had carried goods to England and Europe and were returning empty. The immigrants were used as ballast. One peculiar pattern was for Mayo Irish to get to Glasgow, Scotland, a major shipbuilding center. This route had been known because many of the Mayo men journeyed to Scotland at harvest time to help out with the harvest and earn enough to have their family survive the long winter. This was particularly true for men from Achill Island, just outside Westport.

The immigrants would stay in the hills around Glasgow waiting for the high tide, when the cargo ships would set sail for America. As the tide rose, the price for transportation dropped, so it became a game to see how low the price would go before the captain set sail. Many Irish missed their boats, and there grew up a colony of Irish in Glasgow which remains to this day. Source: <http://academic2.marist.edu/foy/clan/essays/immigration%20patterns.htm>

Co. Tyrone Origin: It is clear the Thomas Donahue came from Co. Tyrone; it is inscribed on his gravestone. However, Donohoe (and its variants) is not a common Co. Tyrone name. In fact, Griffith's Valuation (1860) has only one Donohoe household in all of Co. Tyrone: William Donohoe, Townland of Kilnahusogue, Parish of Clogher, Barony of Clogher.

Notes for Catherine DAILEY:

Catherine Dailey Donahue's birth date is elusive. According to the 15 June 1860 census, both Thomas and Catherine are 43 years old, which means that they would have been born between 16 June 1816 and 15 June 1817; however, her obituary in 1897 shows her age as 93, which would correspond to a birthday circa 1803. Other documents available show: 62 in 1870 and 70 in 1880. Unfortunately, the "Age" line on her death certificate is blank; however, New Cathedral Cemetery records show her age to have been 95 at the time of her death.

Thomas DONAHUE Sr. and Catherine DAILEY had the following children:

Notes for Francis Patrick DONAHUE:

Family lived in 1300 Block of N. 10th Street, Philadelphia.

Family legend has it that one of Francis Donahue's brothers was with Custer at Little Big Horn.

There is a roster of the members of the 7th Cavalry on June 25, 1876 at http://www.us7thcavalry.com/roster\_lbh.htm. This is the date of the Battle of Little Big Horn. There are two persons named Donahue on the roster, both named John. One was a saddler in Company M and one was a private in Company K. Neither is listed as killed in action (KIA).

Another site lists a Michael T. Donahue as with the unit, but not killed in action at Little Big Horn. See: <http://www.friendslittlebighorn.com/Wyoming%20Column.htm>.

Notes for Mary Jane MCSORLEY:

Buried at New Cathedral, 2nd & Erie, Philadelphia. Died at age 94.

Reportedly after Matthew McSorley was killed in Civil War, Mary lived with a family named "Pugh" as a companion for their crippled daughter. This fact is supposedly documented in the history of the Order of the Sisters of Mercy; however, this fact hasn't been confirmed, even by her great-granddaughter, Sister Maureen Christi (Kathleen Donahue), a member of that order with an advanced teaching degree resident in Philadelphia.

Thomas Donahue started working at age 9. At some point he worked in the millinery department at Lit Brother Department Store. For many years, he worked at Gimbel's Dept Store from which he retired. Reportedly died following a stroke.

Death certificate shows YOB as 1881, but Draft Registration form that he personally filled out shows 1886. This is consistent with family memory that he was 70-years-old when he died.

MISSION LOG

This is the mission diary of tailgunner Virgil E. Hoelscher, whose first mission with 1Lt Bernard E. Donahue was on February 20, 1945. (Provided on 8/6/98 by his son, Mark Hoelscher )

Mission #1

Feb. 18, 1945

Today I flew my first mission. Target was Linz, Austria. Medium amount of flak. Bombed through clouds at 25,000 ft.

Mission #2

Feb. 19

Target for today was Vienna - but bombed an alternate which was Klagenfurt, Austria. No flak, had some oxygen trouble. Bombed at 27,000. (Milk run)

Mission #3

Feb 20

Target for today was Vienna, Austria. We really blasted it. Lots and lots of flak. Walker and Donahue flew with me, this was Walkers first.

Mission #4

Feb 25

Target today was Linz, Austria. After flying over it and through flak we didn't drop bombs. We went and hit Amstetten, Austria. No flak, but made two bomb runs. Encountered some JU-88s.

Mission #5

March 1

Target for today was Moosbierbaum, Austria. Didn't see any flak - easy mission.

Mission #6

March 4

Today we hit Sopron, Hungary. It was very cold. Didn't encounter any flak. We really blasted the target. We made two runs on it.

Mission #7

March 9

Target for today was to have been Bruck, Austria, but we bombed Graz Austria as an alternate. Flak was medium. Encountered it at Bruck, Graz, and Mariban. Very little damage to plane.

Mission #8

March 12

Target for today was Vienna, Austria. We expected lots of flak - but saw very little. Bombed at 27,000 ft. 10/10 cloud covering. Several holes in plane - no major damage.

Mission #9

March 14

Today we bombed Szony, Hungary. It was visual with lots of flak and they were really on the ball, tracking us perfectly. A number of holes in the plane. Two in the tail.

Mission #10

March 15

Target for today was Ruhland, Germany. We didn't drop on target but we did get flak, moderate but accurate. We dropped at an alternate. We really had a rough time. Came in with No. 1 engine feathered and No. 4 engine wasn't giving us any power. Picked up several holes in plane.

Mission #11

---

March 16

Target for today was Vienna, Austria. We had to turn back just before arriving at Yugoslavia. Coast No. 4 engine went out, were able to feather it. Dropped our bombs in the Adriatic and headed back to base. Also hit some bad weather. Ice formed on the wings and stabilizer.

Mission #11

March 20

Target for today Vienna. We couldn't keep up with formation due to loss of power in an engine. We bombed Knittenfeld, Austria. A target of opportunity, didn't see any flak over target, but did encounter some over a small town near the target.

Mission #12

March 21

Target for today Vienna, Austria. We bombed PFF at 30,500 ft. Medium flak. Encountered some FW - 190s. It was 52 degrees below zero. We put the first mission on plane no. 750 today.

Mission #13

March 24

Target for today was Berlin. We made history today. We flew the longest combat mission ever flown by B-17s. Soon after take off, no. 2 engine began losing power. We had to drop some of our bombs in the Alps to keep up with our formation. They wouldn't let us turn back, because they needed the gunner's firepower. Getting close to the target the sky was black with flak and ME-262 jets hit us for the first time. The first one came in at me at 6:00 high. I had him in my sights but good! He went under our plane smoking. He was still smoking when the Ball Turret Gunner saw him. The second one came from the same direction, but turned away when I began firing. We were unable to drop our bombs on target due to the bomb bay doors failing to open. Had to crank them open by hand. Bombs would not train out. Had to salvo them way off target. Saw a chute open as the crew of a disabled B-17 bailed out. Had to feather the prop on no. 2 engine. Losing some altitude. Sure good to see those P-38 to escort us back to our base. This was my worst mission. Note: Services in the chapel were well attended that evening. (Note: 1Lt Bernard Donahue awarded Distinguished Flying Cross for this mission)

Mission #14

March 26

Today we hit Wiener-Neustadt, Austria. We did a good job on the marshalling yards. Milk Run. No flak, no fighters.

Mission #15

April 1

Target was Maribor, Yugoslavia. A railroad bridge. It had been destroyed before we got there. Too much overcast to go to an alternate. Brought our bombs back to the base.

Mission #16

April 5

Today hit an airdrome in Northern Italy in the Udine with 38 Frag bombs. Photos showed a thorough job, lots of flak.

Mission #17

April 7

Target for today was a railroad bridge at Bressanone Northern Italy. Due to 10/10 cloud covering over the entire area we didn't drop our bombs.

Mission #18

April 9

Today we bombed the front lines of northern Italy with Frag bombs. Did a good job supporting the British 8th Army.

Mission #19

April 10

---

Generation 4 (cont.)

Bombed the front lines in northern Italy again today. Easy mission.

Mission #20

April 15

Target today was near Bologna, Italy. Flak slight. Easy mission.

Mission #21

April 18

Target today was Bologna, Italy. Mission was scrubbed before take-off. At noon we were briefed again to go. Very little flak. Easy mission.

Mission #22

April 23

Target for today was Railroad Bridge in northern Italy. Was knocked out by group ahead of us. As an alternate we hit supply dumps at Pescheira. No flak. Easy mission. This turned out to be our Last Combat Mission.

- i. KIRA TAIRA<sup>7</sup> DONAHUE was born on 26 Mar 2004 in Aurora, Arapahoe, Colorado.

Notes for Kira Taira DONAHUE:

Kira: A feminine form of Ciaran, from the Irish ciar meaning "dark" and implies "dark hair and brown eyes." St. Ciaran was a distinguished seventh-century figure who established a monastery at Kilkeary in County Tipperary. It was the third most popular baby girl name in Ireland in 2002.

Taira is a Japanese surname linked to the Japanese royal family and to Japanese aristocracy. Kira's grandmother's surname is Taira. Men of the Taira family were samurai.

Taira was an honorary surname bestowed by the emperors of the Heian Period to ex-members of the imperial family when they became subjects. This Taira clan is often referred to as Heishi.

Some grandsons of Emperor Kammu were first given the name Taira in 825 or later. Afterwards, descendants of Emperor Nimmyo, Emperor Montoku, and Emperor Koko were also given the surname. The specific hereditary lines from these emperors is referred to by the emperor's name followed by Heishi. i.e. Kammu Heishi

The Kammu Heishi line proved to be the most strong and dominant line during the late Heian period with Taira no Kiyomori eventually forming the first samurai dominated government in the history of Japan. The last of the head family of the Kammu Heishi line was eventually destroyed by the armies of Minamoto no Yoritomo at the Battle of Dannoura, the last battle of the Gempei War.

The Kammu Heishi had many branch families including Hojo, Chiba, Miura and Hatakeyama.

Military clan also known as the Heike—that dominated Japan from 1159 to 1181. Descended from a branch of the imperial house, the Taira built a military power base in the provinces and became influential at the imperial court in Kyoto in the early 12th century. Between 1156 and 1160 they were involved in two armed conflicts (the Hogen and Heiji wars) which brought the military families into court politics for the first time as power brokers, when power struggles erupted inside the imperial house. In the Heiji war of 1160, Taira Kiyomori, the Taira's greatest leader, crushed his rebellious rivals, the Minamoto family. Having expelled the Minamoto from Kyoto, Taira Kiyomori became prime minister in 1167 and won complete control over the central government, marrying his daughter to the reigning emperor. He put down several revolts against his dictatorial rule, and even moved the imperial court to his own domains, though protests forced him to return it to Kyoto six months later. In 1180 he placed his young grandson on the throne as Emperor Antoku. At the same time, however, the Taira lost their influence among the feudal nobles of the countryside. When Kiyomori died, the Minamoto renewed their struggle with the Taira and drove them from the capital, finally defeating them decisively in the naval battle of Dannoura (1185). Surviving Taira leaders were hunted down, and full military government of Japan was established by Minamoto Yoritomo, the first ruling shogun.

Taira is also a village in Toyama, Japan.
